

DRAMA-LOGUE®

OFF-BEAT CINEMA: One of the most acclaimed short films from Sundance this year was The Spartans. The film, written and directed by David A. Portlock, is the story of five men from vastly different circumstances who are all confronted by a psychotic killer at an all-night convenience store. In a plum role is Diana Barrows as a young woman who gets away. Barrows has been working a lot since her starring role in Friday the 13th, Part 7. She had a co-starring role in Dyan Cannon's The End of Innocence and in She's Out of Control with Tony Danza

... A fascinating sounding film is in production called Zeus and Roxanne. Zeus is a roguish dog and Roxanne is a dolphin, but the two form a unique relationship that puzzles a marine biologist who witnesses the pair. Oscar nominee Kathleen Quinlan is the marine biologist, who forms her own off-beat relationship with a musician played by Steve Guttenberg. The film is in production now under the direction of George T. Miller and co-stars Dawn McMillan and Arnold Vosloo. Child actors Miko Hughes, Majandra Delfino and Jessica Howell are involved in a "Parent Trap" plot to get Quinlan and Guttenberg together. Rysher Entertainment assures us that the animal actors are very well treated: "Roxanne comes from a unique dolphin facility which allows the intelligent mammals to swim freely out to sea during the day and back to safety at night, thus ensuring their longevity."
